

Commentary
by
HG Urmila Devi Dasi

The practitioner stopped trying to enjoy every thing on the plea of bhakti.

But the root of all pride and deceit remains in the heart

All the list given from previous verses common things are yearning for

- 1. I want others to see how great I am!
- 2. I am pure, learned, and detached!
- 3. I want others to appreciate how I am swimming in the ocean of spiritual love!
- 4. I am a great saintly person! Honor me! Glorify me!"

- 1. The sensations of having a prostitute stealing one's wealth,
- 2. A tigress eating one's heart,
- 3. Robbers pulling one around with a strong rope around the neck,
- 4. Burning stinky urine all over oneself,

In the end a person may feel that a party is going on in the heart.
There is food, singing, and dancing!
"This must be spiritual"

Compared with

It's a woman, yes, but the wrong kind.
Her boyfriend Deceit dances with her,
they are eating a dead dog!

It does not nourish but only brings pain and disease.

1. fame is so flickering,
2. Causes fear.
3. Must always adjust themselves to appear pleasing others.
4. Promiscuous lady because goes wherever accolades and glorification, not loyalty and service
5. Destroys our peace and devotion
6. Cant recognize because she is staying for a very long time.
7. She's hurting us
8. Almost impossible to drive her

5th verse advised to call for help from the devotees
Why top commanders are necessary now

1. The dancing dog-eater is the desire for our own honor,
2. Her presence makes us envy those who are worthiest of honor.

1. When we feel satisfied to be in our honest position.

Then the unchaste dancer is thus gone, the pure ladies of divine love then take up residence in our heart,
